by Dr. Richard Isaacson

Saturday, February 11th, 2017, 2pm

Fort Mason Center, Festival Pavilion, Lecture Hall

Dr. Richard Isaacson is a specialist of Central Asian textiles and carpets. He attended Columbia and Stanford Universities before receiving his Ph.D in Theoretical Physics from the University of Maryland. Active with the Textile Museum in Washington, D.C., where Isaacson has frequently lectured and served as a member of the Textile Museum Advisory Council, he was the Guest Curator of Architectural Textiles: Tent Bands of Central Asia (March 30, 2007 – August 19, 2007), and From the Amu Darya to the Potomac: Central Asian Bags from Area Collections (September 7, 2001 – February 24, 2002). Dr. Isaacson was a member of Local Organizing Committee for the 10th International Conference on Oriental Carpets (2003), Washington, D.C., and served as the Exhibition Project Manager for the ICOC show Treasures from the Museums of Uzbekistan. Dr. Isaacson has published in Oriental Rug Review, HALL, Steppe, and Carpet Collector magazines, and is the author of Architectural Textiles: Tent Bands of Central Asia. His latest publication explores archival photographs showing the use of Türkmen Door Rugs.

INDONESIA

The Indonesian archipelago stretches across a distance greater than from San Francisco to New York, has 18,000 islands, 350 distinct cultures, and is the fourth largest country in the world by population. Contradictory factors have helped to shape Indonesia: on one hand, Indonesia's position along major exploration, military, and trade routes has resulted in contact with diverse cultures for hundreds of years. On the other hand, the geography and difficult terrain of the island nation have allowed each island to retain its cultural integrity and distinctive characteristics.

Many generations of women in these islands have blended these diverse influences with a wide variety of motifs, techniques and materials into traditional textiles. Handmade and one-of-a-kind, these textiles are expressions of the spiritual and cultural values of the weaver and her community. Each may take months or even years to complete. On display in this year's show you will see textiles that reflect each artist's impressive skill and patience in creating a unique piece that has profound cultural and religious significance.

INDONESIAN TEXTILE TREASURES: A LIVING LEGACY

Personal Statement of the Collectors: Curtis and Margaret Keith Clemson

Sarong from Sumbawa

Picture two wide eyed, naive, and excited young Americans arriving in the exotic east and descending from the plane into such heat and humidity that their glasses steamed over and they couldn't see a thing. This was 1974 when we arrived in Jakarta to teach school for one year. Nine years, two children and many wonderful textiles later, we moved back to the United States.

Shortly after our arrival, we completely fell under the spell of this fascinating, complicated, magical country. Our instant enchantment with Indonesia was deepened when we saw our first traditional textile, a beautiful hinggi from Sumba. We were intrigued and decided that we should learn more about these cloths, innocently thinking it would be a simple subject. As our knowledge increased and our eyes sharpened, we saw how the traditional textiles express the diversity of culture and love of beauty across the archipelago. This small beginning led to a lifelong fascination with this significant national heritage of Indonesia.

For nine years we traveled, went to markets, connected with people, and were invited into many homes. Our quest for unique Indonesian textile art led us to Iban Dayak long houses, Samosir Island in the middle of Lake Toba, villages in East Sumba, funeral celebrations in Torajaland, and to countless textile shops, dealers' homes, and markets. Our passion for textiles became an entrée for conversations and a prism through which to view and understand the various cultures.

Textile production in Indonesia is, on the whole, a woman's art and consists of ordinary, mostly unnamed women employing unusual skill to make extraordinary art. These textiles are not only complex, intricate, and profound reflections of the culture, they are among the most beautiful and varied in the world, reflecting spiritual and visual values and using a wide diversity of techniques and materials.

There is an astonishing variety of uses for textiles across the archipelago. In addition to clothing and decor, textiles are used as trade goods, gift exchange and wrapping, food carriers and covers. There are places where the cloth worn signals rank, village, and family of origin. At the most mystical level, textiles can be used to appeal to ancestors for protection and guidance.

Each piece provides a legacy of textile tradition passed on through the centuries – a legacy of carefully honed skills, a reverence for ancestors and family, and a love of a woman for her daughter.

The textiles shown here represent a very exciting and special time for us; we are thrilled to have the opportunity to share our love of Indonesia and present some of the textiles which have

Silk batik from North Java
for Balinese market

Sarong from Lampung, Sumatra

meant so much to us. The pieces on display represent at least twenty discrete techniques including ikat and batik, but also the less well known songket, twining, supplementary warp and weft, couching, embroidery, crochet, pelangi, tritik, and cross stitch. You will also see an astonishing variety of materials, including cotton as the most commonly used, but also silk, bark fiber, beads, mica, and threads wrapped with gold and silver among others. We hope that you will become captivated as we did. In this exhibit you will see examples of Indonesian textiles through time, ancient to contemporary; across geography, from the northern tip of Sumatra in the west to Halmahera in the east; and reflecting a wide diversity of cultures, from isolated groups to those that have experienced more outside influences. Their beauty, rich colors and pleasing designs can be appreciated by anyone willing to look. We welcome you to feast your eyes, and consider taking a piece of Indonesian tradition home with you. The pieces are available for everyone from museum curators to new collectors just beginning their journey.

Shoulder cloth from Sumba

For the 2017 Tribal and Textile show we are honored and excited to join with the San Francisco Indonesian Consulate to offer an Indonesian celebration, the perfect context in which to show our traditional textiles. Included in this special event will be performances by Gamelan Sekar Jaya, Ibu Alfonsa from the island of Flores weaving an ikat cloth on her backstrap loom, Ibu Dalmini, a batik artist from Java, demonstrating her art, Indonesians in a variety of traditional dress, and food, coffee, and tea from Indonesia. Two representatives from the Jakarta Textile Museum, Ibu Ari and Benny Gratha, will join us to show a collection of rare and important textiles.

This event, which is the culmination of our love for Indonesia and her textiles, would not have been possible without the generous help of the following:

- Consulate General of the Republic of Indonesia in San Francisco, Consul General Ardi Hermawan, Consul for Information, Social and Public Affairs Bernard Loesi, and Riena Sarajo, Secretary to the Consul General
- Clare Graham and Bob Breen
- Blake Hines, John Morris, and Kim Martindale
- Marcia Loeb
- Rob Coffland of Textile Arts Santa Fe
- Gregory Ghent
- Anne Gibby
- Kate Clemson, Adam Ortega, Jacob Clemson
- Mary Fox
- Madeline Gehrig

– DANCING THREADS, Curtis and Margaret Keith Clemson

ARTFUL WEAVINGS

Exhibition and Sale Presented by Peter Pap Oriental Rugs, Inc.

Shasevan Sumak Bag, Caucasus, Early 19th c.
Collection of Wendell Swan

Artful Weavings is Peter Pap's third exhibition and sale of privately owned village and nomadic rugs, trappings and weavings to be held in the last six years. It will feature the John Corwin Collection of Afshar weavings, perhaps the most comprehensive private collection of these works in existence. In addition to the Corwin pieces, the sale will include exceptional offerings from other noted collections formed by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Baganz, Dr. and Mrs. Al Mazzie, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Swan, Dr. and Mrs. William T. Price and the Thomas D. Cook family. Wendell Swan's two iconic Sumak bags, published in John Wertime's "Sumak Bags of Northwest Persia and Transcaucasia," will highlight the sale. Artful Weavings will bring to the market over 150 carefully collected pieces and will prove to be the most important sale of its type in the United States this year.

SPIRIT TALKERS

NEW PAINTINGS by JAMES HAVARD

Presented by John Molloy

Oil pastel on paper, framed by artist, 11 x 13"

Spirit Talkers features new work from James Havard. Known for Abstract Illusionism, his new work is more figural but focuses on the unseen. Havard's paintings clearly show 'his life long infatuation with the substance of paint'.

Over a 50 year career as a working artist, James Havard's paintings are represented in many contemporary art museums around the world, including: Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, (New York), Smithsonian Institution, (Washington, D.C.), Metropolitan Museum of Art, (New York), Museum of Modern Art, (Stockholm, Sweden), Tucson Museum of Art, (Arizona), Los Angeles County Museum, (California).

FRIENDS OF ETHNIC ART

New and Young Collectors Reception

underwritten by the Friends of Ethnic Art

Saturday, February 11th, 5– 6pm

Meet at the far end of the garden area near the Hali & Tribal Art exhibits during the San Francisco Tribal and Textile Art Show

An Opportunity for Excitement with Tribal Art

Those who are fascinated by the differences and similarities among the world's many cultures may study the art of those cultures as a way to look into its soul, its heart, its personality, its uniqueness, and its vision. When we study the art of a people and their culture, we learn about them and we learn about ourselves. The world gets a little smaller and people get a little closer. Visually, the study of the world's different art aesthetics is both stimulating and relaxing, fascinating and never dull.

Friends of Ethnic Art is a group of people who have separately and coincidentally fallen in love with ethnic art. Luckily, they have found each other and this nonprofit, educational organization has kept them learning and enjoying each other's company for nearly 45 years. Some are students, some are teachers. Some are art collectors, some are art dealers. Some write books, more just read them. Join Friends of Ethnic Art if you would like to:

- Learn more about the arts of Africa, Oceania, Tribal Asia, and The Americas, including Pre-Columbian and American Indian art;
- Learn more about the people, and the traditional or ancient cultures, of indigenous, village, or tribal societies – present as well as past;
- Meet and spend educational and social time with interesting people in this artful community.

Humans are the art-making animal, and humans are the art-collecting species.

Not everyone can make artworks — it takes time and talent — but many can collect ethnic art and almost everyone can learn about it and from it.

Similarly, in Los Angeles, the Ethnic Arts Council is a fine nonprofit group worthy of consideration: www.ethnicartscouncil.org

REVEALING INDONESIAN AESTHETICS

Sunday, February 12th, 2017, 10am

Fort Mason Center, Festival Pavilion, Lecture Hall

Please join Friends of Ethnic Art for:
Revealing Indonesian Aesthetics:
a context for understanding what makes a great piece great!

Ten slides and ten minutes each, with world authorities offering insights into their area of passionate expertise!

THOMAS MURRAY, moderator, will introduce the Austronesian roots of Indonesian Tribal Art and a brief review of later Indian, Chinese, Islamic and European influences.

JAMES WILLIS, senior expert, revisits his historic 1979 exhibition, Sculpture of the Batak. "Never have so many Batak masterpieces been brought together before or since!" (Moderator's comment)

MARK JOHNSON, Borneo specialist, will speak on the Kayanic Dayak tribes of East Borneo and their fabulously compelling sculpture.

CURT and KEITH CLEMSON, guest curators of the Indonesian textile exhibit at the show entrance, will discuss great works of textile art achieved with ikat dyeing and back strap weaving.

GREGORY GHENT will speak about Balinese culture, music, dance, masks and sculpture of his adopted land.

JOHN STRUSINSKI, noted dealer and expert, will introduce Javanese aesthetics, kris and kris handles, his area of great collecting interest.

NATASHA REICHLE, curator of Southeast Asian Art at the SF Asian Art Museum, will talk about the James and Elaine Connell donation of Southeast Asian Jewelry and the Joan and M. Glenn Vinson Gift of Southeast Asian Textiles...stunning pieces all and a reminder of the satisfactions of museum philanthropy.

With a wrap up round table to answer questions, time permitting! A guaranteed interesting and informative morning will be had by all, including free coffee and bakery treats!

Thomas Murray thanks the FEA and Board Member Dave DeRoche for their encouragement and support in making this event possible.

The event is sponsored by Friends of Ethnic Art (FEA), www.FriendsOfEthnicArt.org.

TRIBAL ART

Tongan Paki, Dance Paddle

19th Century

Wood, L: 66cm

Ex Blacks Museum, Mt. Gambier, South Australia.

Used for the dance me'etu'upaki. This traditional dance is mentioned in "An Account of the Tongan Islands" by William Mariner, as told to John Martin MD. Soft back edition P141, edited By Brian K.Crawford - noted as "Mee too buggi i.e a dance standing with paddles.." William Mariner was an English clerk aboard the English privateer Port au Prince, which on Saturday 29th November 1806, he states "..brought to for its last time, in seven fathoms of water at the N.W. point of one of the Hapai Islands, called Lefooga.." Mariner was 14 years old and was adopted by Finau 'Ulukalala, the King of the Islands, after his ship was overrun. He remained for 4 years, returning to England in 1810 where he met Dr. John Martin, who took down his remarkable story.

The Art of Excellence

Art & Antiques is tailored to readers who are actively involved in the international art market. Our editorial policy places special emphasis on the interests of the serious art aficionado—a collector whose passion is acquiring and living with art, antiques and high-end collectibles. Our internationally recognized writers, many of whom are experts in their fields, speak with the voice of authority as they explore the significance and nuances of masterpieces that span the history of art and design—from ancient to contemporary. In our fourth decade, we will continue to provide our readers with insight into connoisseurship, sophisticated analysis of the global art business and lively, critical essays.
